THE PENINSULA PARIS DEBUTS IMMERSIVE NEW ART INSTALLATION AS PART OF “ARTS IN RESONANCE” PROGRAMME

The iconic heritage hotel unveils a dynamic exhibition in partnership with Galerie Templon

The Peninsula Paris has mounted a dazzling new art exhibit in the public spaces of its historic Beaux-Arts property, in collaboration with one of Paris’s most esteemed modern-art galleries, Galerie Templon.

The installation, on display until 10 January 2022, features works by critically acclaimed Chilean sculptor Iván Navarro – whose pieces employ neon, fluorescent, and incandescent light to create an absorbing, almost hypnotic effect. The five sculptures on public display at The Peninsula Paris include one specially commissioned by the hotel – HOME, which invites viewers to consider the concepts of identity and belonging – as well as two other pieces, Tuning and Constellations, which use illuminated one-way mirrors to draw viewers in. An additional five sculptures have been placed in two of the hotel’s signature suites, for the private pleasure of guests who stay in them.

The exhibit is the newest expression of The Peninsula Hotels’ dedicated art-immersion programme, Art in Resonance. The programme was conceived as an opportunity to both inspire visitors and to draw attention to artists who are pushing the boundaries of their mediums. The initiative at The Peninsula Paris is one of many that reflect The Peninsula Hotels’ deep commitment to the artistic sphere, and the hotel is proud to have partnered with Galerie Templon, a modern-art powerhouse since 1966, to bring Ivan Navarro to the Parisian public once again, in the distinctive classical setting of its public spaces and suites.

During the three months of the exhibition, the hotel will also host two round-table discussions, moderated by art experts, to further facilitate dialogue between artists and their audiences. All are welcome (with reservations), but art connoisseurs, enthusiasts, and art-school students are especially encouraged to attend. Dates and topics of the seminars, along with information about booking seats, will be announced separately.

Moving forward, The Peninsula Paris will continue to showcase the work of innovative artists through the Art in Resonance programme, and to promote art immersion and vibrant cultural exchanges for its guests and visitors.
